OER Checklist

Accuracy		Notes
The information is accurate.	✓
The source is reliable.	✓	The source was published from RMIT University, which is a reputable college of technology and innovations.
The source is free of spelling and grammatical errors.	✓
Relevance
The information is relevant to the course topic.	✓
The content aligns to learning objectives.	✓	The objective of the source aligns to the goal of the classroom teacher who is taking the course with the intent to learn how to incorporate Sway into lesson plans.
The current information is sufficient for the purpose of viewing.	✓
Accessibility
The product is clear and readable.	✓
The product can be viewed from the format.	✓
The content provides alternative access to course materials that meets the needs of most learners.	X	The format is a website so all users would need an Internet connection for this source.
Usability
The resource is easy to use.	✓
The resource encourages active learning.	✓	The content on the page is an embedded Sway presentation which demonstrates the objective of the course.
The resource provides assessment capabilities for knowledge checks.	X	Knowledge checks are not needed for this source
Licensing
The resource can be shared for educational purposes.	✓	The website states the creative commons license at the bottom of the website.
The resource is considered creative commons?	✓	Users can share the information for the purpose of the education but cannot edit the material.
The resource has a creative commons licenses posted.	✓	